Master Eckart's Sermon.

(Strasburg, 1320.) " Hear Doctor Eckart, hear him!" he began-There was in days of old a learned man, Who, longing for the truth, eight years did pray That God would show him some one who the way Thereto would show. And on a time, when he Was in great longing and perplexity, He heard a voice from heaven, or in his mind-Go to the front of the church, where thou wilt find One that the way to blessedness will show." Thither he went as fast as he could go, And found a man whose clothes to rags were worn, Whose bare and dusty feet were bruised and torn, Who looked like one acquainted long with sorrow, He greeted him with ' God give you good morrow. 'I never had ill morrow.' Then said he, Wondering at what he heard, 'God prosper thee. 'I never had aught but prosperity.' ' Heaven save you,' said the scholar.' He again-Other than saved I never was." Explain ; I understand not." 'Willingly,' said the man, Whose thought upon their conversation ran; 'Thou wisheth me good morrow; I reply, I never have Ill morrow : for an I Hungry or thirsty, I praise God ; or say That I am shivering, as I am to-day-Fair or foul weather, hall, or snow, or rain, As I praised God before, I do again. Thence comes it that I never had ill morrow. And thou didst say, as if I was in sorrow, God prosper thee, poor man! I answer thus Sir, I have never been unprosperous; For I know how to live with God, and know That what he does is best, and make it so : Pleasure or pain, whatever may befall, I take it cheerfully, as best of all : And so I never had adversity. God bless thee, then saidst thou; and I to thee-I never was unblessed. I long to be Only of God's will; to the Will Divine

What wouldst thou then?' the scholar asked. And he ' God cast into hell? It could not be : His goodness holds him back. But, if not so, I have two arms that would not let him go; One : | umanity, and therewith I Would straight take hold of his humanity; And with the other, that lifts me above. Un to his Godhead, the right arm of Love. I would embrace him till he came to me, And happier there with him my soul would be Than in the heavens without him? Thereupon The scholar mused, and understood anon That not the high and learned path he trod, But one much lower, nearest was to God." Whence comest thou? he asked. 'From God.' 'And

I have so given what once was will of mine

That what God will I will, and all is well.'

* But if God were to cast thee into hell,

Hast thou found God? 'Where I abandoned care-Where I abandoned all. I am a king ; My kingdom is my soul, and everything. Within, without, of which I have control, All that I am does bomage to my soul ; No kingdom on the earth so great as this." *And what hath brought thee to such perfect bliss? Silence, and thought, a mind with God possessed : Resolved in nothing less than God to rest; I have found God-what more the Scraphim? And everlasting rest and joy in him." So Master Eckurt spake, and went his way, And many wondered, as they do to-day. -R. H. Stoddard.

VARIETY.

The worst thing about a mosquito is its long soliloquy as to where and when it is going to settle down and bite. I never had a man cum to me for advice, but before he got thru he had more advice to offer

Our regiment was charging up a side hill, raked fore and aft with batteries and sharp-shooters. One fellow near me dropped on his hands and knees, and crawled on in that position toward the enemy, when the colonel caught him in the rear with the flat of his sabre. " Get up, you darned fool! Do you think you are cavalry!'

Army stories. A little girl in the infant class of a Sunday-school thoroughly appreciated the difference between being good from choice and from necessity. At the close of the school one day the teacher remarked, "Beckie, dear, you have been a dear little girl to-day." "Yes m, I couldn't help being good, I got a 'tiff neck;" the youthful Beckie replied with perfect seriousness.

A green young man in Illinois saw for the first time a school girl going through some of her gymnastic exercises for the amusement of the little ones at home. After gazing at her with looks of interest and commiseration for a while, he asked a boy near by : " Has that gal got fits?" "No." replied be lad, contemptuously, " that's gymnastics." Oh, 'tis, bey," replied verdant; gymnastics." Oh, 'tis, bey," replied verdant; "how long has bad 'em?"
